PATERSON, N. J., May 25.—Cornelius A. King, the New York business manager for the Hincheliffe Brothers' brewing concern of this city, has disappeared, leaving, it is stated, a shortage in his accounts estimated at about $20,000. King was formerly a member of the Tax Board of this city and had the confidence and estem of the people. He entered the service of the Hincheliffes four years ago and began stealing, it is alleged, immediately, continuing his thefts up to two weeks ago, when he fled. His method of obtaining the money was simple—not crediting customers with the amounts of cash paid.

Death of Hon. C. T. O'Ferrall's Mother Death of Hon. C. T. O'Ferrall's Mother.

A Harrisonburg, Va., dispatch, under date of Sunday, the 24th, says: Mrs. Jane L. O'Ferrall, widow of the late John O'Ferrall, and mother of Congressman Charles T. O'Ferrall, died last night at 9 o'clock at her home is Bridgewater, in this county. She was in her seventy-fourth year, and had been in failing health for a long time. Death resulted from heartfailure, following a serious attack of illness one week ago. Mrs. O'Ferrall was a daughter of Dr. John C. Green, of Frederick county, and leaves five children. She was left a widow many years ago, and her life was to a marked degree one of motherly devotion to her children.

Baron Rudolf Kalnoky de Korospatak, a Baron Rudolf Kalnoky de Korospatak, a nephew of Count Kalnoky, of Vienna, made his first visit to Chicago about a month ago, registering at the Richelleu merely as "Rudolph Kalnoky," of New York. He was handsome and distinguished, appeared to be the possessor of unlimited means, and, while evidently suffering from habitual melancholy, soon became a favorita with the few to whom he gave his friendship. The object of his stay in Chicago was a mystery to all except Manager Carlson, of the hotel, to whom he partially told his story.

She led the Baron a doleful life both here She led the Baron a doleful life both here and in other cities to which he followed her. She constantly kept before him the fact that she could never become his wife, as her heart was already given to one for whose sake she would shortly end her stage life. Kalnoky finally became convinced of the truth of this and remained behind when the company left Chicago. Ten days ago he again weakened, and made a flying trip to Lousville in one last effort to conquer the pretty actress.

While there he seems to have met one of his numerous rivals, though not the suc-

Last Friday morning he returned to the Richelieu, having given up his original idea of following Miss Atherton from Louisville to Pittsburgh. The same night the man whom he had encountered in the South dined with him at the Richelieu restaurant, the two seeming to take a morbid intensity in the same they contend their testion of the same properties.

South dined with him at the Richelieu restaurant, the two seeming to take a morbid interest in together drowning their mutual sorrows.

A too free indulgence in the wine, however, quickly ended the friendly character of the meeting. In the parlor a few minutes after dinner a cry of rage was heard and a heavy fall. Kalnoky had knocked his companion down for speaking disrespectfully of the woman he loved. An hour afterward a friend of the southerner appeared with a respectful note, demanding a meeting. Kalnoky at once accepted in a note which he sent to a friend then stopping at the Richelieu, and to whom the southerner's second was referred.

With the exception of the rash act which gave the excuse for a challenge, the affair was carried out with regard to every nice distinction of the code. On Saturday night the Baron was informed that all the details had been arranged, and that the meeting would take place at Jackson Park at daybreak of the following morning. Kalnoky's second having the choice of weapons had selected rapiers, the Baron being unfamiliar with the pistol, and the arrangement being satisfactory to his opponent, who claimed familiarity with fencing through student life abroad.

and some friends yesterday the aight in a whirlpool and capture A young of the master A young of the surface of course. The Baron settled his bill, left word that if he did not survive all his belongings at the hotel were to be sent to the woman for whose honor he had fought, and quietly retired to bed.

At 4 o'clock this morning he entered a waiting carriage and was immediately joined by his second. Or Prairie avenue they stopped to take in a prominent young physician whom the Baron had known when the former was a student in the hospitals of Vienna. At Jackson Park they found the opposite party. The seconds walked about for some time, selecting the most favorable fighting ground. This was at last found close to the Fifty-ninth-street entrance to the park, just west of the small bridge. It was an ideal spot for an affair of honor. On one side it was shielded by the high board fence which separates the improved from the unimproved portions of the park, and on the other by a great knoll surmounted by a heavy growth of bushes and trees.

FLASHED THEN THEE SABELS BARE.

PLASHED THEN THEIR SABRES BARE. At ten minutes past 6 the adversaries were facing each other, sword in hand and bared to their shirts. A moment later the word was given, and like a flash the southwere facing each other, sword in hand and bared to their shirts. A moment later the word was given, and like a flash the southerner commenced. After some sharp fighting the southerner succeeded in inflicting a slight wound in the right leg of the Baron. A little later the Baron made a clever lunge which pricked the skin on the right shoulder of his adversary. The latter, however, parried admirably, and at this moment, to the horror of the seconds, the Baron appeared to slin and literally to fall on the point of his adversary's sword, which entered his neck. A stream of blood gushed from the wound. The seconds at once stopped the combat. Baron Kainoky was assisted to an adjoining knoll and his wound hastily dressed.

After ascertaining that the result would not necessarily be fatal the southerner and his friend left the field. Every effort to identify this man has failed. With the exception of Kalnoky he appears to have been unknown to all concerned. His appearance, however, leads to the belief that he is the son of a prominent citizen of Atlanta, Ga., famous in the South as an authority on the code of duello, and who, though quite young: has taken an active part in several affairs of honor. He is known to have boarded the Cincinnati train on the "Big Four," which left the Hyde-Park station at 9-45, two hours after the termination of the combat.

Baron Kalnoky's exact whereabouts are kept secret, but unless he was able to go East to-night he is still at the residence of the combat.

the attending physician or of friends in Hyde Park.

Manager Carlson, of the Richelieu, while deeply regretting the affair and annoyed that it should have become known, is assured that the young Austrian has been well cared for and that his life is not in immediate danger. From conversations with him, however, he fears that the Baron's misplay was not a mere accident, but that finding himself facing one not his equal in swordsmanship he took that means of houorably ending his life. If this was the case Mr. Carlson fears that Kalnoky may follow the failure of this morning by a successful attempt upon his own life.

In the report of the president of the Board of Health for the week ending Saturday, May 23d, there appears the death of an old colored woman alleged to be one hundred and four years. Dr. Christopher C. Tompkins, the physician who attended the deceased, said that the woman certainly died from old age, but as to her being over one hundred years old he had no knowledge, but simply took the word of members of the family, and in certifying to her age qualified it by saying "supposed to be" of the age mentioned.

The Independents of Fairfield held their usual meeting last night. Their regular chairman and secretary officiated. Everything passed off harmoniously. The City Engineer suggested that Mr. Bristow and Mr. Philips appear before the Water Committee and arrange the matter, which was agreed to. Mr. Bristow said another delay was caused by the painting of the doors, the color not being in accordance with the changes that had been made. He also said that the lumber in the stalls and shelving had been put in during the late wet season, causing the joints to open. This, he said, would be fixed. Furthermore the paying in the market-house was in some places faulty. This, he said, would also be remedied.

The condition of Mr. J. H. Powell, who had his left leg so badly injured in the collision on Main street Friday night that amputation was necessary, was very hopeful yesterday. He is indeed much improved.

Dr. Hugh Taylor said last night that while it would be probably ten days before his patient would be entirely out of danger, he was doing very well indeed and improving hourly. All the symptoms are favorable. Mr. Powell is perfectly conscious and suffers very little pain considering the nature of his wound. Dr. Taylor says that he is a man of wonderful courage and fortitude, and considering his mature age, stands the wound very well. He received no internal insury whatever.

Great interest has been manifested in Mr. Powell's case, and scores of calls are made at his house every day by persons with whom he is acquainted. His misfortune has caused the most profound sympathy throughout the city. THE OTHERS DOING WELL. Captain W. T. Gathright, of the Hook-and-Ladder Truck, who, after Mr. Powell,
